EXPLICACION DE UNOS SIGNOS ESPECIALES

ê indica una e muy abierta como en francés mère.

ä representa un sonido intermedio entre a y e más cercano de a.

Es un sonido peculiar de la región de Azpeitia y Azcoitia.

ø es una e muy atenuada parecida a la e alemana en hole.

ḏ es un sonido intermedio entre d mojada y g mojada. Se produce formando una oclusión con el dorso de la lengua. Generalmente se ha transcrito con y, pero es muy distinto de la y tal como se pronuncia en francés, alemán, castellano y Goyerri de Guipúzcoa, siendo la articulación de la ḏ mucho más enérgica que la de la y. Su intensidad varía en los distintos pueblos.

dx es la grafía oficial de un sonido intermedio entre la g italiana de gente y la j francesa de jour. La pronunciación de este sonido varía igualmente, percibiéndose todas las etapas intermedias de la evolución desde d que es el sonido original hasta dx.

Las letras puestas en paréntesis se suprimen con frecuencia o representan variantes; v. gr., grätue(a) significa que se usan las dos formas gatüe y gatüea.
